

Tertiary Infotech Academy Pte Ltd

UEN: 201200696W

ANSWER KEY — WRITTEN ASSESSMENT (WA)

For

Customer-Centric Branding and Communication Tactics

TGS Ref No: TGS-2026061321

Conducted by

Tertiary Infotech Academy Pte Ltd

UEN: 201200696W

Version 2

Written Assessment (WA) — Answer Key & Marking Guide

Course Code: TGS-2026061321

Mark each answer against the model points below — award the mark where the candidate covers the key ideas; wording will vary. All items are taught in LU1–LU4 (source shown in brackets).

Q1. Distinguish between internal and external stakeholders of a brand, and explain why their level of influence over the brand can differ. [LU1 — Stakeholders and Organisation]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Internal stakeholders (management, employees) and external stakeholders (customers, partners, investors, media) each hold a different level of influence over — and interest in — the brand.

Q2. Name the different types of external audience a brand must communicate with, and explain why each needs its own communication approach. [LU1 — Stakeholders and Organisation]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- External audiences segment into customers, partners, investors and media; each needs its own communication approach and message.

Q3. When drafting a branding design or idea, why is it important to highlight the product or service's attributes and benefits rather than just its features? [LU1 — Stakeholders and Organisation]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Branding designs and ideas should foreground the product or service's attributes and the concrete benefits they deliver to the audience.

Q4. Describe how you would assess an organisation's reputation on social media and other platforms, and explain why this is the starting point for a branding decision. [LU1 — Stakeholders and Organisation]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Assessing an organisation's reputation on social media and other platforms — reviews, mentions, sentiment — is the starting point for every branding decision.

Q5. Explain what is meant by a "perception gap" between how a company sees its brand and how customers actually experience it, and why this gap matters. [LU2 — Customer Influence]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Customers form perceptions of a brand, its products and its services from quality, experience and communication — a gap often exists between what a company believes and what customers actually feel.

Q6. Explain how customers can influence a brand's reputation, and why their voice can have more impact than a paid campaign. [LU2 — Customer Influence]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Customers actively shape brand reputation through word-of-mouth, reviews and advocacy — their voice can amplify or damage a brand faster than any paid campaign.

Q7. Why is it important to document customer reception and the outcome of a branding campaign, rather than relying on general impressions? [LU2 — Customer Influence]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Documenting customer reception and the outcome of branding campaigns turns anecdotal feedback into evidence for future campaign decisions.

Q8. Describe the key elements of active listening, and explain how they help reveal a customer's true perspective of an organisation. [LU2 — Customer Influence]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Active listening — full attention, a structured framework, and paraphrasing without judgement — reveals the customer's true perspective of the organisation.

Q9. List the basic elements that make up a brand's identity, and explain why consistency across these elements matters. [LU3 — Branding in Marketing]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Branding basics — visual identity, brand values, brand voice and brand guidelines — give a business a consistent, recognisable presence.

Q10. Explain the role that branding plays within the marketing mix, and how it differs from a single marketing campaign. [LU3 — Branding in Marketing]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Branding plays a central role in marketing: it builds trust, differentiates from competitors and creates the emotional connection that drives loyalty.

Q11. Describe how branding campaigns, events and activities can be used to increase brand awareness. [LU3 — Branding in Marketing]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Executing branding campaigns, events and activities — from social pushes to experiential pop-ups — raises brand awareness across the target audience.

Q12. Explain why a public-relations campaign must be aligned to the brand positioning strategy, operational plan and budget. [LU3 — Branding in Marketing]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Public-relations campaigns must align to the brand positioning strategy, the operational plan and the marketing budget to stay credible and sustainable.

Q13. Identify the different types of metrics used to measure an organisation's reputation, and explain why they must be tracked across multiple platforms. [LU4 — Branding Effectiveness]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Reputation is measured through social metrics, digital metrics (traffic, mentions) and business KPIs (NPS, satisfaction) across every platform the organisation touches.

Q14. List indicators that show a branding effort has been successful, beyond just awareness. [LU4 — Branding Effectiveness]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Successful branding shows up in awareness, customer loyalty, financial impact and trust metrics — tracked consistently over time, not measured once.

Q15. Describe the public-relations tactics a brand can use to extend its message beyond paid channels. [LU4 — Branding Effectiveness]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Public-relations tactics — media relations, community outreach, crisis management and digital engagement — extend the brand's message beyond paid channels.

Q16. Explain how monitoring a brand against SMART KPIs turns branding into a continuous-improvement process. [LU4 — Branding Effectiveness]

Suggestive answers (not exhaustive):

- Monitoring the brand against SMART KPIs and acting on the gaps turns brand management into a continuous-improvement cycle rather than a one-off campaign.